

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention provides a color imaging system and a method to capture an accurate color image by use of a tunable filter tunable between two states and a color detector that records the light transmitted through the filter when the filter is in the first state and then in the second state.